

SMITH, Pat

Pat was a former grass track rider who called at Brough Park, Newcastle, to ask for a trial and won a team place a few weeks later. He missed the latter part of the 1946 season after suffering from diphtheria and made more regular appearances in 1947 when he filled a reserve berth for much of the campaign. Despite failing to score in over half of his 17 matches that season, Pat was given an extended run in the team but could only boast a top score of two, paid three, at home to Bristol in July.
